Subordinating Conjunctions

"A A A W W U B B I S"

"after, although, as, when, while, until, because, before, if, since"

These are just some of the subordinating conjunctions... there are a few others!

"unless, during, whatever, even though, in order to, though, whenever"

How Does This Help Us With Punctuation?

Rule 1: If a sentence begins with one of these words, it signals a comma will be needed.

Example: After we left the park, the wind storm knocked over some of the trees.

Rule 2: Never put a comma before one of these words.

Example: The wind storm knocked over some trees after we left the park.
Coordinating Conjunctions
(Words that signal "Compound" Commas)

and, or, for, nor, so, but, yet

Remember, you have to have a complete sentence on both sides of these words!

The "Opener" Comma

RULE #1: Use a comma to set off an opener or after any introductory element in a sentence.

Opener, sentence.

EXAMPLES:
At the end of the game, let's order a pizza.
No, I would rather order sub sandwiches.
Jane, what do you want to order.
Well, I'm not sure I can wait that long.
After we watch the halftime show, I'll be hungry.
Wow, I can't believe we're still talking about this.

Notes
✓ Speaking to someone
✓ Yes /No
✓ AAAWWUBBIS words
✓ Mild Exclamations like hey, wow, etc...
✓ Transition words/phrases
✓ openers may have one, a few, or many words
RULE #2: Use two commas to set off an interrupter or a phrase that interrupts the main sentence.

EXAMPLES:

Please take those smelly socks to the garage, Kris, and put them in the washing machine.

My essay, to be perfectly honest, flew out of the bus window while I was riding to school.

What you just ate, if you must know, was squid eyeball stew.
The "Compound" Comma

RULE #3: Use a comma and conjunction to connect two complete sentences

Examples:

I really like country music, but I like classical music too.

Tigers have sharp claws and teeth, and they know how to use them.

I'm coughing all the time, so I think I should see a doctor.
The "Series" Comma

Rule #4: Use commas between items and phrases in a series:

Sente, n, c, and e.

EXAMPLES:
This morning I woke up, got dressed, brushed my teeth, and ate breakfast.
